Experience Cecil B. DeMille's Epic Silent Film - The Ten Commandments (1923)

Before Cecil B. DeMille directed Charlton Heston in the oft-shown-at-Easter The Ten Commandments (1956), this silent epic recreated ancient Egyptian monuments in the California desert and explored the relevance of The Ten Commandments in modern (1923) life.

chariot crashes. The production scale of this movie was absolutely enormous and actually ran out of money part way through production. Bank of America founder Amadeo Giannin saved the production with a personal favor of $500,000 to DeMille.

Synopsis

The story comes in two parts, first, a prologue in biblical times showing the story of the book of Exodus, and a second part following two brothers and their views on the Ten Commandments in modern times. The film stars Theodore Roberts as Moses, Charles de Roche as Pharaoh Ramses, and Estelle Taylor as Miriam, sister of Moses. Richard Dix and Robert La Rocque play out the roles of the brothers in modern times.

This special screening is a silent film with live accompaniment on the Mighty Wurlitzer Organ.
